School incursions should be viewed as a powerful and positive teaching tool that help enhance the social, personal and emotional development of all students and learners. Extra stimulation in new environments can be particularly beneficial to students of any any and can help teach life skills and improve independence.

The Council for Learning Outside the Classroom (LOtC) commissioned a survey through Teacher Voice which found that: 87% of teachers said that organising school based events and performances to attend at school made lessons memorable and 77% agreed that it motivated and enthused young people with regards to their learning.Â School Events, performances and shows booked to come to the school and into the classroom therefore adds value to each individualâ€™s academic and personal development.

School incursions provide unique opportunities for kinaesthetic learning i.e. â€˜learning by doingâ€™ and encourage students to engage with buildings in new ways. This is particularly beneficial for many students who find visual and sensory experiences helpful to their learning and understanding.

Hands-on learning activities outside the classroom lead to better achievement, standards, motivation, personal development and behaviour.Â Children and young people are able to enjoy and achieve in new engaging ways.

School based incursions that comes to the classroom is rewarding for both teachers and pupils alike. Discovering new places and experiences undoubtedly adds extra depth to pupilsâ€™ and studentsâ€™ learning and experience.

Learning outcomes for the individual are vast including:

1. improved self-confidence and self-esteem
2. ability to empathise and understand new perspectives
3. increased aspirations and motivation
4. broader understanding of society
